Trailer music composed by Jeff Broadbent

Mobile Legends Bang Bang is a mobile multiplayer online battle arena video game developed and published by Moonton. Teams of five champions, each with unique abilities and attributes, compete each compete against one another for domination of the battlefield.

“Blazing West” is a western-themed story that accompanies the game, in which the town sheriff Claude and tribal heroine Matilda fight side by side against their nemesis Waldo Kane and his nefarious group.

Jeff Broadbent (composer) comments: “Crafting music for the latest cinematic trailer of Blazing West was a great experience. As a score composer, I’ve always been intrigued by the challenge of representing characters and narrative through music.”

“To capture the Western feel and emotion needed, I used a variety of instruments such as slide acoustic guitar, harmonica and solo trumpet performances, native-American flutes, and twangy electric guitar. These instruments helped to provide the rustic and earthy sonic colors fitting for the western desert locale.”

“When the action and combat of the trailer begin I used a variety of string orchestra rhythms, powerful french horns and trombones, and skinned and metallic percussion, to represent the visceral action and the intense vehicle driving in this part of the trailer. The music rises and falls according to the on-screen action, building into the climax towards the end of the scene.”

“The score ends with a triumphant tribute to the heroes, and their collective strength and resolve in working together to vanquish their foe.”
